

6 benefits to expect from a measurement partner

Expect more from your measurement

The world of oil and gas is changing. You know there is plenty of new opportunity out there, but you are facing more strain with fewer resources and greater challenges than ever before. The world expects more from you and that's why you should expect more from your measurement partner. Discover six key benefits you should expect from a premier measurement partner.

01 EXPECT INTEGRATED & SCALABLE SOLUTIONS

Your operation can run on a number of standalone products. However, this is not ideal, and it does not always result in the efficiency and scalability your business needs in this rapidly changing environment. Instead, find a measurement partner who can see the whole picture of your operation and provide an integrated solution made of products and services that are truly meant to work together. This will allow your solutions to more easily scale up with your business as you grow, enabling you to do more, faster, with one key partner.

02 EXPECT SIMPLICITY

You are used to dealing with complex operations, but the effects of a growing skills gap are making you find even more creative ways to make the situation work. Selecting a provider that is a true partner can greatly simplify your task. Consider a partner with a team of experienced technical experts who can support your business with everything from your existing equipment to the latest advancements in technology. By having a partner that you can count on, you will be able to ensure the best performance and optimum results.

03 EXPECT EFFICIENCY

Minimizing operational downtime is critical to your business. Measurement partners that are equipped to provide a wide range of products, solutions and services can help you achieve greater uptime, more convenience and lower total cost of ownership. With more of an integrated solution, your partner will be able to help you solve any challenges in a way that is fast and effective. More holistic, integrated solutions make it possible for your entire operation to run more efficiently.

04 EXPECT INNOVATION

Digital solutions are a key part of technology development today and you should expect your measurement partner to offer you the most innovative digital solutions. In midstream operations, digital solutions can support everything from monitoring sample readings, to detecting potential leaks, to managing equipment performance. These solutions offer you an effective way to access and monitor data to help you optimize operations and make your business more productive.

05 EXPECT RELIABILITY & ACCURACY

Expect your measurement provider to deliver increased accuracy and reliability by helping you automate more of your manual processes. Through automation, you can replicate these processes in a way that's precise, efficient and safe, so that you can allocate resources where they will add greater value. Automation gives you peace of mind to understand what is happening at your sites, so you can respond faster, reducing product loss and the risk that poses to the environment.

06 EXPECT SAFETY

There are many solutions available that can reduce the amount of time your employees are exposed to potentially hazardous conditions. With remote diagnostics and automated solutions, you can keep your workforce safe and manage your operations efficiently. Additionally, advanced technology can help you comply with tightening regulations by optimizing operational performance.

Expect more from your measurement with ABB

ABB has the ability to provide a complete, integrated solution for your business. From our wide-range of robust products to our services and expertise, we can provide an end-to-end solution that is supported in a way that ensures your success. With greater integration and better support comes a wealth of benefits for your business.

ABB can give you:

- Products, solutions, and applications that are built to work together – and are able to create a complete solution from top to bottom
- A robust, yet accessible, digital offering that helps you tap into your data and optimize your entire operation
- Services that are completely customizable and range from online training materials to full-service technical support

Contact an ABB representative to learn more today.

ABB Measurement & Analytics

For more product information, visit:
www.abb.com/measurement